

COVID-19 response, resilience and recovery

Funding program guidelines

As part of Rio Tinto's Partnership for Progress program, $100,000 in funding is now available for not for profit community groups and associations to support COVID-19 response, resilience and recovery activities.

Eligibility and guidelines

1. Applicants must be a registered not for profit community group or association
2. Requests must explicitly link how the funds will be used to support COVID-19 response, resilience and/or recovery activities and meet one or more of the following areas:
 - Response efforts to respond to the COVID-19 threat
 - Recovery efforts to return to a normal operational state after the initial COVID-19 period of difficulty
 - Resilience in increasing the adaptability of small groups and associations to further impacts
3. Requests must include a brief project plan, objectives, timeline, budget and goals
4. Requests must primarily benefit residents of the Gove Peninsula region
5. Groups are eligible for up to $5,000 in funding
6. Rio Tinto will generally not support private business, travel & accommodation, political or religious activities
